

We snuggled up real close in church,
Like two peas in a pod,
When suddenly the question came:
“Please, Nana, who is God?”

I turned to quietly tell her, “Hush.”
I couldn’t answer then.
But, “Wait,” I thought, “Best do it now;
She might not ask again.”

We walked outside to where the world
Was bathed in warm sunlight;
I prayed to God, "Oh, help me, please—
I've got to get this right."

In silence first we strolled along
As usual, hand in hand.
And slowly then my thoughts took shape;
She just might understand.

“It’s really hard explaining God—
(Though I would surely try)
“Unless we find out what He did:
The when, the how, the why.”

“There was a time when nothing was—
No land, no sea or sky,
No birds or plants or animals,
And not one butterfly.” ² 🙏

"A mighty force began to move ³ 🧘
Out there in endless space:
A 'Spirit' without human form—
No arms, no legs, no face."

"That would be bad," she laughed at me.
"There's nothing He could do."
"Oh, no," I said, "He has no need
To look like me or you."

“This Spirit did have company: ⁴ 🙏
A Father and a Son.
What’s really hard to understand—
These three were really one.”

“Right from the very start, you see,
And to our present day,
This threesome bears the name of God;
By some He’s called YAHWEH.” ⁵ 🙏

Please, Nana

Who is God?

Children ask the toughest questions! Should they be answered or pushed aside for another day? This book and its follow-up companion, Please, Nana ... What is Death? (with yet more likely to come) meets the tough questions head on, conveying biblical truths in a captivating style.

Meant to be read to children by a loving adult, this book seeks to convey only Truth as the Creator has provided it in the Bible. Children love the rhyme, which can make it easier to explain difficult concepts.

Helpful notes and extra resources (in the form of weblinks) are provided to make it even easier to deal with these sorts of issues.

The stunning artwork builds in the child affection towards the main 'real' characters (one inquisitive little girl and her loving Nana) that helps him or her absorb the biblical points being made. In an eye-catching, modern yet sensitive style, the book's illustrations brilliantly bring to life concepts that can be hard to visualize, let alone draw—and do so in the most appealing, child-friendly way.

“Delightful, accurate, educational, and very, very appealing
... these are beautiful, wonderful books.”

Donna Rees (Managing Editor, The Old Schoolhouse® Magazine).

Who is God?

What is Death?

CREATION
BOOK PUBLISHERS

ISBN: 9781921643187

